

Bank deposit mo, protektado!

ADVISORY TO THE PUBLIC

3 June 2022

Recently, the Philippine Deposit Insurance Corporation received information about a “private advisory” sent to specific individuals purportedly from the PDIC. In the said advisory, the recipient is asked to send a deposit insurance fee payment to a designated Bitcoin address to facilitate the release of a large sum of money for deposit into the individual’s bank account.

This is not an official PDIC Advisory.

The PDIC does not issue private advisories. It also does not require depositors to pay any fees when filing insurance claims on their deposits with closed banks. If you receive such an advisory, please report to the PDIC’s Public Assistance Department (PAD) through any of the following channels:
